The dance machine

Choreographic and musical installation – created in 2001

Choreographic concept and video : LIN Yuan Shang

Computer conception and technical realization : Frédéric BLIN

The dance machine is an interactive system that can be installed in theatre or exhibition halls.

At the end of a black tunnel, a video of LIN Yuan Shang dancing constantly the same choreographic phrase is projected onto a screen. The audience is invited to create the soundtrack on a console. The choice is broad – between classical music, Chinese traditional songs, pop...

The result is often surprising, and captivating. The individual perception of viewers gives the illusion that this dance of LIN Yuan Shang fits every kind of rhythm.

The dance machine can also be put up with a computer or a TV and a video-recorder

Production : Compagnie Eolipile – LIN Yuan Shang
